HISTORY

The Westlock townsite was originally surveyed in 1912 and on March 13, 1916 Westlock was formally incorporated as a Village with a population of 65. With a population of 854, Westlock was granted town status by the Province on January 7, 1947.

Westlock was named after William Westgate and William Lockhart, the gentleman from whom the land was purchased for the original townsite. Westlock's first grain elevator was constructed in 1916, the first bank (Merchant's Bank) opened in 1918 and the first newspaper (Westlock Witness) commenced operation in 1919. The first hospital to serve Westlock and area residents, the Immaculata Hospital, was opened in 1928 by the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul. It was vacated in 1995, after the new Westlock Healthcare Centre opened and was eventually demolished in 1997.

A historical point of interest is the Edison settlement, an area settled in 1902 approximately six kilometres east and three kilometres south of Westlock. Initially named "Little Grande Prairie" by the first residents. Edison once had a store, post office, hotel, blacksmith, school and church. Most of the homesteaders reached the "Little Grande Prairie" area via the Athabasca Landing Trail, which is approximately thirty two kilometres east of the settlement. It was, at this time, a major route connecting Edmonton with the north. In 1913, the E.D. and B.C. Railway was developed adjacent to the hamlet, making Westlock the main hamlet in the region and leading to the eventual closure or relocation of many of the businesses and services in Edison. Today, the only reminder of this early settlement, which may have become the region's main centre if not for the location of the railway, is a historical sign posted at the weigh scales east of Westlock.

By the end of World War I, Westlock was, and to this day still is, an established service centre.
